The Morning Gargle

By EDNA KENT FORBES

A matter of sanitary precaution, one should give the throat a thorough washing out with some antiseptic solution every day. This will prevent the formation of germs in the throat, will help to cure colds, and, better than that, it will prevent colds and sore throats.

These are only the health reasons why a thorough gargling of the throat is advisable. There is another which I think is almost equally important. If you wish to have a clear voice and a beautiful voice, you must have the throat in a strong and healthy condition. You cannot enunciate well if your throat is clogged up. The quality of the voice of your voice will never be good if the throat itself is not healthy and clear.

It takes only an extra minute or so to gargle with some antiseptic solution. I would advise doing this every morning when you wash or at any time, since any foreign matter that collects in the throat is apt to do so overnight when you are asleep. If you wish your voice to be clear and strong, but it would be much better to use hot salt water, which costs practically nothing and is so easy to get.

Keep a little covered box of table salt in the bathroom closet and add a teaspoonful of this to three cups of water of a glass of hot water. Rinse out the mouth with it, since it is healthy for the gums, carries the throat and snuff a little up the nose until you feel the nasal passages clear. This not only clears out the throat, but kills any germs that may be lurking there the nose and throat passages.

Nerves—a simple exercise for relaxing is as follows: Sit down, and hold your hand in front of you, about a foot or so above the knees. Then, bend the tension which holds your hand there, and let go your hand and allow it to drop limply to your side. This may sound as if it is an easy thing to do, but few persons perform the exercise properly at the first attempt.

The hand must become as limp as a rag, and drop as heavily as if it had been detached from the body. This will find a natural resistance to this "letting go" on the part of the hand, which means you will have to repeat the exercise until you have attained it.

After you have accomplished this exercise, you will find that your nerves have quieted and that your converted it into a 20-year payment policy will not receive credit on the permanent policy for the first five years for which he has held the term insurance.
